

High Performance Sustainable Schools

MARCH 23-24, 2010

Embassy Suites • 1801 Newtown Pike • Lexington, Kentucky 40511

Alvaton Elementary, Warren County Schools

"Kentucky has quickly moved from the end of the line to the front of the pack nationally in energy conversation, thanks in large part to innovative, informative programs like the High Performance Sustainable Schools workshops."

—First Lady Jane Beshear

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Michael J. Spearnak, AIA, CEFPI, Director of Planning, Design and Construction for Poudre School District in Fort Collins, Colorado, will relate the process and strategies that have won Poudre School District more than 30 awards for sustainable environmental design and energy efficiency.

If you want to make a difference in the quality and affordability of K-12 education today, designing and constructing high-performance school buildings is the place to start. Register now to learn how high-performance facilities improve student health and productivity, attract quality teachers, significantly reduce energy use and operating costs, and protect the environment. School superintendents, school board members and facilities managers, with their architects and engineers, are encouraged to attend this two-day workshop.

Featured Site Visits

Each day participants will travel by charter bus to nearby high performance school buildings. Day one will feature a new construction project and day two will feature a major school renovation. Project teams will explain their "whole-building" design and procurement strategies used to create them.
